Sad Opera Entertainment and Shane Ó Fearghail Announce the Launch of the New Video for Faerie Tree from They Might See Dolphins

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

[Vienna, Austria] – Sad Opera Entertainment and Irish singer-songwriter Shane Ó Fearghail are thrilled to announce the launch of the new video for Faerie Tree from the album They Might See Dolphins, which is available on all platforms.

Faerie Tree (<https://youtu.be/cv8mTukdV8k>), inspired by a weekend on the Hill of Tara in Co Meath, is a song about an ancient Irish Romance tale between Niamh and Oisín and their meeting.

In this indie ballad, Shane perfectly blends his characteristic vocal style and acoustic guitar sound in a delicate mix of lyrics in English and Irish.

“One minute you’re hearing the heartfelt warblings of the singer songwriter”, writes DJ Sinister Pete from Phantom FM “next they’re rocking it out with the best of them and that’s what makes this Dubliner stand out”.

Shane Ó Fearghail (<http://shaneofearghail.com>) is an Irish Singer-songwriter from Dublin, now based in Vienna. His musical style fits neatly into the Irish Indie Folk box. Likened to REM, Crowded House, Rufus Wainright III and Ron Sexsmith, it is easy to see where his songwriting loyalties lie. Irish music however, is his first love.

With connection across Ireland, Austria, Germany, UK, and the US Sad Opera Entertainment promotes emerging artists on a track by track basis for media opportunities on TV, Movies, Commercials, Video Games.
